RE: HHCC, Inc, Mark Rawlins

To Whom It May Concern;

I have worked with Mark and HHCC for the past six months and find the quality of their work, professional responsibility on and off the job, as well as their financial concern for the client's budget far above any contractor I have ever worked with in my thirty year professional career.

The specific dedication and pride that Mark personally has instilled in his diverse staff of contractors and subcontractors not only makes my job as the architect easier but much more efficient and enjoyable. This dedication and pride gives the owner a product that they can be very proud of at the end of the day.

I have found that HHCC, not only gives their clients good value for their money but enhances that product with work, over and above, should the project need a little "more attention" than previously considered, without additional costs and change orders. Mark and HHCC bring a "pride of ownership" to the project, that I have not experienced before to this extent. Although maintaining strong budget constraints, Mark and HHCC will continuously strive to upgrade materials, concepts, and ideas, while working closely with ownership, architects, suppliers and interior designers to maximize the design intent as well as staying well within original cost constraints.

It is indeed a pleasure to unconditionally recommend Mark Rawlins and HHCC for any project that you might have. Early on, they will work with you to establish budget constraints and projections. I have found that their construction time lines, once developed and discussed with ownership are strictly adhered to throughout the project, regardless of standard 8-5, five day work schedules. If it takes working in the middle of the night on the weekend, the middle of the night work is done with no additional cost to the owner once the parameters are developed and agreed.

Once you have Mark Rawlins and HHCC on a project, you could walk away, come back when they said it would be complete, for the cost they said it would be completed and finished they way it was envisioned. It would be completed by the team of proud, conscientious, talented individuals that HHCC has pulled together for your specific project.

Sincerely,

Dan Burbine, AIA
